Baccarat is financed by a banker who is a player that puts his or her money up to be betted against. A person may not be a banker and player at the same time. The Player's "hand" may be played by 5 to 12 players. In order for this to work, there are a set of rules on how play will proceed. To begin, the Banker and the Players are dealt two cards each, face-down. Players may bet on the Banker, a Player, or a third spot on the table marked Egalite, or Tie. If a player has a natural, which is an 8 or 9 total points on the first two-card deal, he or she wins immediately. There is a separate set of rules that are followed in the event that the player draws a third card.
