Here at Wink Slots we're keen to find out what makes you tick and what happens when you win big, so we surveyed 2,000 UK adults with a handful of simple questions on just what they would do upon striking it lucky. We often imagine how we will spend our winnings like this lucky Scottish couple who scooped £33 million recently, or shopping for these unbelievable holiday homes, but rarely how much it would take for us to give up our day job, and that's where it gets interesting as data shows the average Briton would want to win at least £5.4 million before giving up their day job! And more than 1 in 3 (36%) would continue to work after winning a "substantial" amount of money. Our research also revealed some other interesting findings - including the fact that one in six (16%) would give up their job to work for a charity if they won a significant amount of money. More than one in 10 (11%) would retrain to get qualified for their dream job, with 1 in 5 (21%) dreaming of getting skilled up for a career in the digital media industry – putting vlogging, video game development and web design amongst the top jobs we'd choose after making the big time. Other popular dream careers to retrain in included acting, travel/exploration and as a musician. A quarter of Britons (24%) would invest in a business if they won a substantial amount of money, with property investment (27%) being the most popular form of investments they would make.

Upon winning a windfall, more than eight out of 10 (83%) Brits would keep it a secret from their boss, while almost half (46%) say they would confide in their colleagues. Unsurprisingly, we are most likely to share the good news with our family (83%) and friends (73%). So, if you struck it lucky, how much would you need to win to call it a day, and who would you confide in about your good fortune? While they all share a defining characteristic, a growing jackpot, there are some differences that change how quickly and big that jackpot grows. Below are the three main categories within progressive jackpot games. Wins and losses in blackjack depend on a number of factors and are not entirely random. For this reason, enthusiastic players may try to beat the house by working out systems to even the odds ... legally. These gamers are known as advantage players ("AP" for short). One of the most common methods used by advantage players is blackjack card counting – that is, keeping track of all the cards that have been seen in play. This enables an AP to predict, with greater accuracy, how many high cards will come up in future deals, which in turn will reduce the risk associated with wagering on blackjack hands. Card counting takes practice and concentration, but it is certainly doable. mgt game catalog

Cheat Sheets for Craps – While examining the types of bets offered at the craps table isn't illegal, carrying a cheat sheet is prohibited. This is defined as a piece of paper with the various odds for each possible bet, as well as their payout percentage. I'm not sure why casinos care about this, as every possible wager is slanted in their favour to begin with. Maybe they just don't want a bunch of people standing around the craps table with their faces buried in a piece of paper. There are other ways that horse racing odds are displayed around the world, but most online betting sites will allow you to use decimal odds or any other major method you prefer. One unusual practice that should be explained is the method used to display payouts in the United States. This method is similar to decimal odds, but that assumes a $2 bet at all times. After a race, you may see that a winning horse paid $6.00. That figure is based on a $2 bet; essentially, this is the same as 3.00 in decimal odds.
