Instead, it says that as the sample size of flips gets larger and larger, the result will approach 50%. While after 100 flips, there might be 60 heads and 40 tails (a 60% rate for heads), after 1,000,000 flips, it's extremely unlikely that either heads or tails would have been flipped even 51% of the time. That said, over that huge sample, there might be a few hundred more heads or tails – but that's a very small difference over such a large number of flips. One that is certainly worth highlighting is Reef Run, which has 5 reels and 20 paylines. It has a free spins feature with a level multiplier, which increases exponentially.
