La Partage and En Prison Rules In many online European roulette games (and all French games), the player-friendly rules of la partage (sharing) and en prison (in prison) are used. Applicable to only the 50/50 wagers (red-black, odd-even, high-low), if you place a bet on any of those wagers and the ball lands on zero, the la partage rule states you lose only half of your stake, recouping the other half. You may also have the option to play the en prison rule, where your bet is 'imprisoned' for the very next spin, and returned without any winnings if that next spin successfully matches your bet. If it loses however, the bet is forfeited. If the next spin also results in a zero, rules vary on what happens to the wager; it may be deemed a win, loss, la partage or en prison. Both the En
